Ahead of BMC polls, Cong picks Marathi face to head Mumbai unit

MUMBAI, DECEMBER 19

AHEAD of BMC polls, Congress has made a high-profile pick to lead its Marathi face in Mumbai, indicating the party is not only determined to win this year’s civic elections, but also to win the state elections. The party has named Prithviraj Chavan, a two-time Union minister, as its candidate for the BMC election, which is to be held on February 14, 2022, in the state’s capital city.

The decision to choose Chavan, a former chief minister of Maharashtra, is seen as a sign that Congress is serious about winning the BMC election, which is considered a key bellwether for the state assembly elections in 2024.

Chavan, who has served as a minister in the UPA government, is expected to bring a strong presence to the BMC election campaign, given his experience in handling large urban issues.

The party has also announced Shirsat and Jadhav as its candidates for the Mumbai corporation elections, which are due later this year.

The appointment of Chavan as the BMC president-elect is a significant move by the party, which has been struggling to maintain its influence in Mumbai in recent years. The party had won only 31 of 227 BMC seats in the last election, and is currently trailing in the polls.

The BMC election is scheduled to be held on February 14, 2022, and is considered a key indicator of the political climate in the state. The party is likely to use the election to showcase its candidates and their track records, and to highlight its achievements in the city.

Chavan’s appointment comes as the party is gearing up for the BMC election, and is expected to bring a new dynamism to the campaign. The party is likely to use Chavan’s presence to mobilize the Marathi-speaking electorate and to emphasize its commitment to good governance.

The BMC election is likely to be a tough fight, with the BJP and the Shiv Sena expected to put up strong challenges. The party is likely to use its resources to highlight its achievements in the city and to emphasize its commitment to good governance.

FARMERS’ PROTEST AFFILIATED TO NO PARTY

PRESSTRUSTOFINDIA

Manish S searcher and Agriculture Minister asserted the ongoing farmers’ agitation against the new farm laws is not affiliated to any political party.

In a statement ahead of Holi and on the occasion of his birthday, the minister said that the government was committed to providing a better life to farmers and ensuring the welfare of all sections of society.

The minister also said that the government was committed to providing a better life to farmers and ensuring the welfare of all sections of society.

The statement comes against the backdrop of a nationwide farmers’ protest against the new farm laws, which has been going on since November 2020 and has so far claimed the lives of several farmers.

The farmers’ protest was sparked by the enactment of three farm laws, which were passed by the Parliament in September 2020. The laws, which were introduced by the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) government, aim to liberalize the country’s agricultural sector and promote agri-business.

The farmers have been demanding the repeal of the laws, which they claim will lead to the exploitation of farmers and the concentration of land in the hands of a few.

The minister’s statement comes at a time when the farmers’ movement has gained momentum, with millions of farmers camping out at the borders of Delhi and other major cities to protest against the laws.

The government has so far rejected the farmers’ demands and has defended the laws, saying that they will benefit the farmers in the long run.

Kerala's latest private sector employer with a political muscle

Twenty20 in Premier League

What happens when Kerala's largest private sector employer brings a management style to panchayat democracy? More funds, villas housing, a subsidised market, stunning election success, and charges of veiled autocracy, says a PHILIPacist on a unique initiative that is disrupting Kerala's deeply entrenched politico-political politics — for the good, and bad.

The Sign of the Four

Twenty20's corporate social responsibility wing, KITEX, is at the heart of this story. It is said to have been tested with considerable success in the private sector. The company has been able to use its political muscle to its advantage in Kerala's recent elections. It has been able to secure political power in several panchayats, and its influence has continued to grow.

Schemes, subsidies, keep voters happy: ‘Can’t live on ideology’

Rajeswari Kizhakkambalam, a member of the Nationalist Congress Party (NCP), has been a vocal critic of the Twenty20 movement. She has accused the company of using its political muscle to manipulate voters in Kerala's recent local elections. She has been critical of the company's use of corporate financial resources to influence local elections.

Armenians Mourn War Victims, Call On PM To Quit

Thousands of people visit Yerevan Military Pantheon on Sunday as the anniversary of the 1988 Nagorno-Karabakh war with Azerbaijan, when Armenia, as Soviet Armenia, was defending itself in the newly proclaimed republic from a Soviet-Armenian enclave. The event commemorates the Armenian victims of the 1988-1994 conflict, which saw the loss of over 30,000 lives, mostly civilians. The government of Armenia has rejected international calls for a peaceful settlement of the conflict, and the conflict remains unresolved. According to the Armenian government, the conflict is a result of Azerbaijan's aggressive policy, and the Armenian military has been defending its borders and territorial integrity. The conflict has strained relations with Turkey and Russia, and has led to increased diplomatic tensions and economic sanctions. The Nagorno-Karabakh conflict remains a major issue in South Caucasus.

The term was introduced by a young man, Simon Baron-Cohen, who is interested in the autistic spectrum. Autism is characterized by a range of symptoms, including difficulty in social interaction and repetitive behaviors. Many neurodivergent individuals find it challenging to navigate the world and society, which can lead to feelings of isolation and exclusion.

The key to understanding autism and other neurodivergent conditions is empathy. People with autism often struggle to read social cues and interpret the world as others do. This can lead to misunderstandings and conflicts, which can be hard to navigate. Understanding and empathizing with others can help us break down these barriers.

We need to build communities of belonging, where everyone is welcomed and valued. A world where neurodivergent individuals can thrive is possible, but it requires our collective effort. Let’s work together towards a neurodiverse world where everyone’s story counts.

PET STORIES AND LEBELF

This year I read Home Dog: A Brief History (2017) [Vignette] by Ernst Hemingway and I Will Follow You into the Dark (2018) by Erdoğan Çetın. It was interesting to juxtapose the two books that dealt with the companionship of humans with their pets. In the book by Hemingway, the author depicted the relationship between a man and his dog in a way that was both heartwarming and thought-provoking. The novel by Erdoğan Çetın, on the other hand, was a tragic tale of a man and his dog, and the way they were separated in the end. Both books made me reflect on the bond between humans and their pets, and the ways in which it can be both rewarding and challenging.

THIS IS NOT MY KINGDOM

The two books I read this year were Two Years Before the mast (1841) by Herman Melville and The Riddle of the Santeri (2019) by Richard Mabey. Both books dealt with the theme of exploration and discovery in different ways. Melville's book was a classic account of life aboard a whaling ship, while Mabey's novel was a contemporary exploration of the natural world. Both books were rich in detail and description, and they made me appreciate the beauty and complexity of the natural world.

GERMANY, THE EU AND THE TTIP

I read the book The German Way of Immigration (2018) by Paulus, a new book that delved into the complex issues of immigration in Germany. The book explored the challenges faced by Germans in accepting immigrants, and it highlighted the importance of creating a welcoming and inclusive society. The author also discussed the role of the government and the role of the media in shaping public opinion on immigration.

I have always been fond of reading history, and this year I read The Rise of the Chinese-Indian Civil War in 1949 by Partha Banerjee, which provided an insightful account of the conflict between China and India. The book was well-researched and presented a comprehensive overview of the events leading up to the war.

B. PHUPHENYADAV

ANCIENT GURU

Disrupted and destroyed the lives of people. We had to leave our homes and go to other countries due to the civil war. The war lasted for nearly five years. We lived in refugee camps in other countries. The book tells the story of how we managed to survive in those difficult times.

VARUN GROVER

THE PAST IS A COUNTRY

I read The Past is a Country by Simon Armitage this year. The book is a collection of poems that explore the history of Britain, and it is written in a powerful and evocative style. The poems touch on a wide range of topics, from the war in Afghanistan to the legacy of empire. The book is a powerful reminder of the impact that history has on our present lives.
