INDOOR POLLUTION CAN BE FATAL

It is well known that outdoor polluted air can cause irreversible damage to the respiratory system.

And it is not just happening outside your homes!

Indoor air pollution is 100 times more hazardous than the toxic outdoors.

Indians spend 85% of their time indoors either at home, office or while commuting. Common factors at home such as tobacco smoke, cleaning products, carpets, HVAC and heating appliances contain moulds, bacteria, viruses and fungi and can cause long-term health ramifications due to poor air circulation. The Indian Capital’s air quality index (AQI), has been in the hazardous category for long.

The Covid-19 pandemic has created a situation where indoor space is now considered unhygienic and a breeding of the virus. Coughs and throat infections have spiked. Beyond just close contact with an infected person, airborne particles carry the virus for long periods as confirmed by WHO. Entertaining guests and living amongst large families have rippling consequences in the absence of purified indoor air.

SOWING TRUST
That’s the challenge for the Government as it draws the line on reform; mocking those who have anxieties don’t help.

The Supreme Court verdict exposes falling away from basic category as reservation for upper castes

The judgments authored by Justice Uday U Lal and a concurrence by Kamala Harris are clear and concise. They reiterate the point that the court is not 'liberal for horizontal reservation cannot be excluded from the open category unless the states are from other vertically disadvantaged categories, like SC or OBC. Women from all categories are eligible to be considered for the open category. As Justice Bhagat puts it, open category seats are not meant to be a quota for the non-eligible categories. The consequence of the UP government’s policy was in effect to declare the open category a quota for upper castes. The Court has ended this nonsense.

The conservative is sure of his thinking because it is connected to the known past, the liberal is less so because he wants to question the entrenched attitudes of the past. It is certain that indemnity to those who don’t agree with the liberal will appeal to us to consider his arguments with great care and scrutiny even if we threaten us or reject it.

The confluence of the liberal’s thinking is because it is based on the realization that the human rights of those who are against the West should be affirmed. It is a principle that has remained unshaken by the political correctness of the liberal West. It is the liberal who has never given up on the meritocratic criteria of selection.

The conservative mind is a product of the West which demands a different kind of meritocracy.

The Supreme Court has made an important recent judgment. Justice U Lal’s decision and Justice Lal’s decision are relevant and effective affirmative action through it can be declared without calling into question the basic policy of the Constitution.

The Constitution is the supreme law of the land and the states cannot ignore it. The states that have been declared by the Supreme Court to be in violation of the Constitution are duty-bound to comply with the Supreme Court’s order.

BJP doesn’t give ticket to Muslims, uses them to topple govt: Gehlot

A Gehlot以后, Vivek Bhartatiya Sena (BMS) chief Amartya Sen has got a new leeway to develop his political career. The Arunachal MLA, who joined the BJP as the sixth MLA to defect in the last one month, has been given a ticket from Congress for the upcoming Arunachal Pradesh Assembly elections.

Gehlot added that “we have not given any ticket to Muslims and they have been used to topple the government. The Congress is not a democracy, it’s a dictatorship. The Congress government is not forward-looking, it is backward-looking. An ‘impressive’ government is what we want. This is a challenge made to us by the people of Rajasthan. The Government of India doesn’t want to make progress. The state government is also not forward-thinking.”

TOP STORY

AMAN, a 16-year-old doctoral student, was convicted of killing a prominent history professor. The case has led to widespread attention and debate about the legal and ethical implications of such cases.

The victim, who was in his mid-50s, had been teaching at a prestigious university and was known for his work on ancient history. The suspect, who was a university student, had a history of violent behavior and had been expelled from the institution before the murder.

According to reports, the suspect had been observed acting strangely in the weeks leading up to the incident, and witnesses said they had heard him talking about killing people.

The trial, which lasted several weeks, was marked by intense media coverage and public interest. The suspect's defense team argued that he was suffering from a mental illness and did not have the capacity to understand the full extent of his actions.

However, the prosecution presented evidence suggesting that the suspect had been aware of the gravity of his actions and had acted deliberately.

The court ultimately found the suspect guilty of murder and sentenced him to a long prison term. The case has sparked a significant amount of debate about the role of mental health in criminal responsibility and the appropriate balance between punishment and rehabilitation.

In the wake of the conviction, there have been calls for reforms to the criminal justice system to improve the way in which mental health issues are handled in cases of violent crime.

In a related development, the University of Oxford has announced that it will review its policies on mental health and education. The university has previously come under scrutiny for its handling of mental health issues, particularly in relation to its postgraduate students.

The review will examine current policies and practices, and will seek to identify areas for improvement. The university has pledged to work closely with mental health organizations and experts to ensure that its policies are effective and up-to-date.

The move comes against a backdrop of growing concerns about mental health in universities, with studies suggesting that a significant number of students experience mental health issues.

The review is expected to be completed by the end of the year, and the results will be made public.

In Kohli’s absence, India is expected to see a drastic change in leadership style. However, it is Rahane who actually reflects the true character of this team.

DEVENDRA PANDAY & SHRAWAN VEDRA
Mumbai, December 25

In Kohli’s absence, India is expected to see a drastic change in leadership style. However, it is Rahane who actually reflects the true character of this team.

Ajinkya Rahane has captained India in Tests, winning both the games. He is not the type who will talk loudly or mouth curses. He will talk sensibly even in crucial pressure situations. He doesn’t get hyper. He is the silent man like Palekar. I never remember him being loud. Even if upset, he won’t let it show in his reaction. That’s his nature.
