TMC releases ‘report card’ of its 10 yr rule, showcases welfare schemes for girls, poor

Mass contact programme from today, aimed at reaching out to 1 crore families

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
KOLKATA, DECEMBER 11

In this run-up to the Assembly elections, the TMC on Friday released its ‘report card’ of the last 10 years, as it prepared for a welfare-intensive and doors-to-door contact programme by its government in the state.

The party also launched a report card on the two-day-door contact programme by the TMC in Tripura.

“After a particularly tough year in the past, we are confident that the people of West Bengal—aligned at a time when adverse conditions had been prevalent in the Assembly elections—will give a proper response to this report card,” sandhiya Sarkar, TMC of Bengal—aimed at reaching out to 1 crore families at the Assembly elections on Sunday.

Notably the state government has launched a two-day-door contact programme in over 2,500 assembly constituencies. The Assembly elections will be held in 294 constituencies.

“Our party will start this outreach programme tomorrow (Friday). We will take the message of the welfare schemes, achievements and initiatives of the government to the people,” said sandhiya Sarkar.

Referring to the report card, she said, “West Bengal, which was one of the worst-affected states by the lockdown and the resultant economic luminings, has recently witnessed a significant economic upturn, with the government’s efforts and support, the economy has started its recovery.”

“Employment, education, and empowerment of the vulnerable sections have also been given top priority. The education sector has also shown impressive results in the last 10 years. Education has also been made free in the last 10 years, a significant achievement of the TMC government,” said sandhiya Sarkar.

She added that the government has taken many initiatives, including schemes for housing, which have been well received by the people of the state.

The report card has been distributed to the people of the state with an aim to highlight the achievements of the TMC government in the last 10 years.

The TMC has claimed that the report card has been prepared on the basis of data collected from different departments of the state government.

The report card includes information about the achievements of the state government in various sectors such as education, health, tourism, and infrastructure.

The TMC has also highlighted its efforts to promote the welfare of girls and children, with the launch of various schemes like Kanyashree, Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan Yojana, and Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan. It has also highlighted its efforts to provide ration to the people of the state.

The report card also highlights the achievements of the TMC government in the education sector, with the launch of various initiatives like the Free Education Scheme, Pradhan Mantri Gram Swaraj Aayog, and the Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan.

WITH THE GOVERNMENT trying to make some concord, the farmers refusing to budge and the indirect approach of doing demos to struggle against some of the new policies, there is no sign of the Karnataka government dropping its stance. The present government has been steadfast in its refusal to concede to the demands of the farmers. Their adamant stance and the farmers' unyielding resolve have led to a prolonged standoff, with both sides dug in and unwilling to budge.

In a recent development, the Karnataka government refused to approve the Prevention of Slaughter and Preservation of Cattle Bill 2020, which was introduced in the state Assembly. The bill, which seeks to regulate the slaughter of cattle, was opposed by the farmers, who claimed it would lead to an increase in the price of meat.

The government's stance has been further reinforced by the recent appointment of Vajubhai Vala as the new Governor of Karnataka. Vala, who is known for his pro-farmers' policies, has been credited with ensuring that the farmers' demands were heard and their concerns were addressed.

Despite the government's firm stand, there is a growing sense of urgency among the farmers, who fear that their demands may not be heard if they continue to protest. They have called for a peaceful resolution to the issue and have appealed to the government to take their concerns seriously.

The farmers' protests have highlighted the challenges faced by the Indian government in balancing the interests of different stakeholders. The government must find a way to address the farmers' concerns while also ensuring that the country's economic growth is not hampered.

As the standoff continues, the farmers' resolve remains unbroken, with many of them calling for a wider movement to support their cause. The government, on the other hand, has been firm in its stance, and the question now is whether both sides can find a way to resolve the issue peacefully.
Reform, the Indian way

My view is that India is too much of a democracy to mirror a China model. This has been misconstrued to mean we have too much democracy.

A woman and child were murdered in a hotel room in Gujarat, India.

The woman was kidnapped and then killed by her kidnapper, who then disposed of the body by setting it on fire.

The incident occurred on November 27, 2021, and the victim was a 25-year-old woman from Ahmedabad.

The kidnapper, a man named Ravi, was arrested on December 1, 2021, and is currently being held in police custody.

The case is being investigated by the Gujarat Police, and the investigation is ongoing.

The woman's family is devastated and is seeking justice for the murder.

The case is being widely covered by the media, and the police have appealed for anyone with information to come forward.

The incident highlights the need for improved safety measures and better security in hotels and other places where people stay.

The police are urged to take this case seriously and to ensure that justice is served for the murder victim.

The case is being closely monitored by the media and the public, and the police are being called on to provide updates on the investigation.
PROTOCOL MATTERS
All PRIME Minister Narendra Modi's foundation stone-laying for the new Parliament building on Thursday, questions were raised over the legality of the move, but the Prime Minister's Press Secretary denied any irregularities. In a separate address to the nation, the Prime Minister did not address the legality of the move, but instead focused on the decision to build a new Parliament building.

BJP releases 'report' on Jharkhand govt, JMM points to bypoll result

The report stated that the report was prepared by the BJP's working committee and sent to the government for consideration.

The BJD, which was initially against the bill, eventually supported it. The government declared the bill an emergency measure on the grounds that it is necessary for the protection of the cattle.

The BJD government in its one-year in power said people of the state rejected the BJP in the recent bypoll. In the health sector, the Centre and the state have failed to implement the bill.

In its report, the BJP said there are some technical reasons for the delay in the implementation of the bill.

Liquidity push for debt markets: Plan to list G-secs on global bond indices

ISSUES ADDRESSED

- Sources told the Reuters New Delhi bureau that EPFO has expressed interest in inclusion in global bond indices.

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) had outlined a three-year roadmap to make the debt market more liquid for the non-resident investor, as a first step toward the global bond market.

A SET of Indian government securities will be included in global bond indices, a Reuters source has said, setting the stage for a planned push by the central bank to make the debt market more liquid for non-resident investors.

Hunter Biden says his taxes are under investigation

US PRESIDENT-ELECT Joe Biden says his taxes are under investigation by the US tax agency.

In a tweet on Thursday, Biden said he was aware of the investigation by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and would cooperate fully.

The IRS would not comment on whether they were investigating Biden's taxes.

The disclosure comes just days after Biden's son Hunter Biden, who was Vice President Joe Biden's son, was named in a report by the US Senate Finance Committee, which was investigating President Donald Trump's tax affairs.

Biden said he was confident that a professional team of IRS lawyers and investigators would handle the matter.

Biden said the allegations were "false and baseless" and that his family had "paid all due taxes, legal and proper."
Baggy Green

Cameron Green

Cameron Green is yet to play a Test, but his domestic exploits have got Aussies punters excited about the arrival of a rare-seen-bowling all-rounder of quality.

In 19th-century cricket, the traditional baggy green—far and away the most iconic piece of cricketing kit—was a hat worn by every player. The hat was a plain green felt cap, made of a thick and durable cloth, and was known as the “Baggy Green.”

In modern cricket, the term “Baggy Green” is often used to refer to a player’s first international cap, and it is a significant moment in a player’s career. The cap is traditionally presented to the player by the team’s captain, signifying their acceptance into the team and the beginning of their international cricket career.

Cameron Green, born in 1999, is an Australian cricketer who has been a part of the Australian cricket team since 2021. He made his first-class debut in 2019 and has since established himself as one of the country’s most promising all-rounders.

Green’s rise through the ranks has been rapid, and his performances in domestic cricket have attracted the attention of cricket fans and experts alike. His versatility, both with bat and ball, has earned him comparisons to other great all-rounders in Australian cricket history, such as Shane Warne and Jason Gillespie.

With a career batting average of 44.62 and an ODI strike rate of 138.16, Green has shown his potential to be a match-winner at the highest level. His bowling figures of 48.0 overs for 95 runs in his debut ODI against India in 2021 also highlight his all-round ability.

The arrival of a player of Green’s caliber is a welcome development for Australian cricket, which has seen a decline in the quality of all-rounders in recent years. Green’s presence on the international stage promises to bring a fresh perspective and renewed hope for the future of Australian cricket.

In conclusion, Cameron Green’s emergence as a potential successor to Australia’s great all-rounders is a cause for celebration among cricket fans. The Baggy Green, a symbol of recognition and honor, awaits him as he continues to make his mark on the cricketing world.

Green scored many 120s in the Shield, and his first-class form continued into the World Cup as he scored a century in the semi-final. He was named player of the match.

After a difficult start to the Shield season, Green thrived in the World Cup, scoring a century in the semi-final and being named player of the match. His form continued into the Test series, where he scored a century and a half-century in the first Test against India.

Green’s performances in the World Cup have put him in contention for a Test cap, and his form in the Shield and World Cup has been rewarded with the call-up to the Test squad.

The anticipation for Green’s debut Test is palpable, and fans are eagerly awaiting his performance on the international stage. The Baggy Green, a symbol of recognition and honor, awaits him as he continues to make his mark on the cricketing world.
