The TMC, which pollutants had conducted a study, had submitted a memorandum to the West Bengal government, which had taken some measures to control them.

The study, which concluded that the problem was due to the use of fertilizers, had identified several factors that contributed to the problem. Among the factors identified were the use of excessive fertilizers, the use of untreated sewage water, and the use of industrial effluents.

The report, which was based on the study, recommended several measures to control the problem. Among the measures recommended were the reduction of the use of fertilizers, the treatment of sewage water before it is discharged into the river, and the installation of treatment plants for industrial effluents.

The TMC had also asked for the release of funds for the implementation of the recommendations. The government had responded that it would release the funds as soon as possible.

The kids are not alright

Worsening of child nutrition calls for immediate and decisive course correction

SUNNY JOSÉ

IE (CDR) UNREDACTED

In India, undernutrition is a critical issue. The National Family Health Survey (NFHS-5) has revealed that nearly 30% of Indian children below two years are underweight, with one in every three children suffering from stunting. This is particularly concerning as undernutrition during critical developmental years can lead to lifelong health consequences and reduced productivity. The NFHS-5, conducted by the National Family Health Survey (NFHS-5) in 2019-21, has shown a worrying trend in undernutrition, with the prevalence of stunting increasing from 29.2% to 30.7% for children under two years and from 23.9% to 24.5% for girls aged 10 to 19 years.

The report highlights that the burden of undernutrition is concentrated in specific regions, such as the northeast, east, and north-eastern parts of the country, where the prevalence of stunting is significantly higher. The NFHS-5 also reveals that the urban-rural divide is increasingly widening, with rural areas experiencing higher levels of undernutrition than urban areas.

The NFHS-5 data further underscores the need for immediate and decisive action to address child undernutrition in India. The government and various stakeholders must prioritize the implementation of evidence-based interventions to combat undernutrition, focusing on early childhood development and improving access to quality nutrition and health services. This includes strengthening the health and nutrition systems, ensuring access to safe drinking water, and promoting breastfeeding and complementary feeding practices.

In conclusion, the NFHS-5 data serves as a wake-up call for policymakers and stakeholders to take urgent action to address the alarming levels of child undernutrition in India. The time is ripe to implement the recommendations of the NFHS-5, ensuring that every child has access to quality nutrition and healthcare services, thereby promoting their healthy growth and development.

Sonia writes to Uddhav, demands quota for SC/ST entrepreneurs in contracts projects

Congress: Sonia writes

Cong. national working president Sonia Gandhi writes to Uddhav Thackeray to bring within 30 days a bill to ensure a quota for SC/ST entrepreneurs in contracts projects in this coming Maharashtra assembly session.

Sonia writes to Uddhav Thackeray

Sonia Gandhi wrote to Uddhav Thackeray on December 14, requesting him to bring within 30 days a bill to ensure a quota for SC/ST entrepreneurs in contracts projects in this coming Maharashtra assembly session.

The letter

"I am writing this letter to inform you that the Congress party has always been committed to ensuring representation, opportunities, and rights for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (SC/ST) entrepreneurs in the contracts projects and procurement contracts. It is the responsibility of the State Government to ensure that there is a fair and equal representation of SC/ST entrepreneurs in procurement contracts for the benefit of the SC/ST community. It is also a matter of principle that the benefits of the procurement contracts should be distributed equally among all sections of the society.

"As the national working president of the Congress party, I urge you, the Chief Minister of Maharashtra, to take up this matter with the Maharashtra Cabinet and ensure that a bill is introduced in the last meeting of the current monsoon session of the Maharashtra Assembly to ensure a quota of 5% for SC/ST entrepreneurs in contracts projects. The bill should also have provisions to reserve a certain percentage of State Government contracts for SC/ST entrepreneurs.

"As the national working president of the Congress party, I am committed to ensuring that the rights and opportunities of the SC/ST community are protected and strengthened. I urge you to take up this matter with the Cabinet and ensure that a bill is introduced in the last meeting of the current monsoon session of the Maharashtra Assembly.

"Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Sonia Gandhi

National Working President of the Congress Party"
A massive hack in US, using a novel set of tools

One of the biggest cyberattacks to have targeted US government agencies and private companies, the ‘SolarWinds hack’, is being seen as a likely global effort. How was it carried out, and what kind of data has been compromised? Why have US government officials and politicians named Russia?

The SolarWinds hack, a cyber attack that was deemed “likely global” by US officials, emerged as one of the biggest ever targeted against the US government's agencies and several other private companies in the US. It is likely capable of stealing data from military networks, government agencies, and private companies, according to Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA). It was discovered in September, and finally released in February 2021, with information related to certain government systems.

The Target

The target of the cyberattack was SolarWinds, a software company. SolarWinds software has been used by US government agencies and private companies, as well as by Russia.

The Impact

One of the biggest cyberattacks to have targeted US government agencies and private companies, the ‘SolarWinds hack’, is being seen as a likely global effort.

The SolarWinds hack was seen as a likely global effort, with information related to certain government systems.

The Implications

- Impact on US government: The SolarWinds hack compromised the US government's networks, including those of the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Energy, and the Department of Defense.
- Impact on private companies: The hack affected several private companies, including FireEye, Microsoft, and Apple.
- Impact on global cybersecurity: The hack demonstrated the vulnerability of government and corporate networks to cyber attacks, and the need for greater cybersecurity measures.

The Cyberattack

The SolarWinds hack was carried out by a group of hackers, believed to be Russian, who gained access to SolarWinds's servers and infrastructure.

- How it was carried out: The hackers used a tool called “SolarWinds” to infect systems on SolarWinds's customers' networks.
- What was stolen: The hackers may have stolen sensitive information related to government and corporate systems.

Conclusion

The SolarWinds hack demonstrated the vulnerability of government and corporate networks to cyber attacks, and the need for greater cybersecurity measures.

French President Emmanuel Macron faces a test today in his ability to provide leadership in a crisis

President Emmanuel Macron faces a test today in his ability to provide leadership in a crisis, as a surge in new COVID-19 cases threatens to overwhelm hospitals and healthcare workers.

Macron, who has previously been praised for his handling of the pandemic, is expected to announce new measures to control the spread of the virus. However, his popularity has been falling in recent months due to the ongoing pandemic and economic challenges.

The French government has already imposed strict lockdown measures, including curfews and restrictions on gatherings, in an attempt to contain the spread of the virus. However, these measures have been met with resistance and compliance levels have been mixed.

The surge in cases over the past week has forced hospitals to declare a state of alert, with intensive care units reaching capacity levels. The government has urged people to stay at home, avoid large gatherings and wear face masks in public.

Afghan-Taliban delegation meets Imran Khan in Pak

The Afghan-Taliban delegation met with Pakistan's Prime Minister Imran Khan in Islamabad, with both sides reportedly discussing the possibility of a political settlement in Afghanistan.

The meeting comes as the United States and other countries continue to pressure the Taliban to engage in有意义的 talks with the Afghan government. The Taliban have so far rejected calls for negotiations, saying they will only engage with the Afghan government if the United States withdraws its troops.

Pakistan has been a key mediator in the Afghan peace process and has been working to facilitate talks between the Taliban and the Afghan government. The meeting with Khan is seen as a step forward in the efforts to achieve a political solution to the war in Afghanistan.

FDA sets to clear Moderna COVID-19 vaccine after panel endorsement

The US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is expected to clear Moderna's COVID-19 vaccine after a panel endorsement.

The FDA advisory panel is expected to recommend approval of Moderna's vaccine this week, setting the stage for the agency to give the nod for widespread use of the vaccine.

The vaccine has shown promising results in clinical trials, with more than 90% effectiveness in preventing COVID-19. If approved, the vaccine could be a significant boost to the global effort to combat the pandemic.

The Unorthodox Figurines Have Been Seen In So Far A Further Erosion Of Vatican’s Nativity scene this year raises eyebrows

The Vatican’s Nativity scene this year raises eyebrows.

Vatican’s Nativiye scene this year raises eyebrows.

Some of the figurines in the Vatican’s Nativity scene have been described as unorthodox, causing a stir among Catholic faithfuls.

The scene, which depicts the birth of Jesus Christ, has been a source of pilgrimage for centuries. However, this year’s scene has sparked controversy due to the inclusion of figurines that some believe do not conform to traditional representations.

For instance, the figurines of St. Joseph and the Virgin Mary have been replaced with modern interpretations, raising questions about their appropriateness.

The Vatican has defended the decision, saying it is important to reflect the diversity of the Catholic Church and its global reach.

However, the scene has sparked debate among some Catholics, who believe it goes against traditional interpretations of the Nativity story.

Ted Cruz's unusual Christmas card.

Ted Cruz, the Republican senator from Texas, sent an unusual Christmas card this year that has sparked controversy.

The card features an image of Cruz, dressed as Santa Claus, riding a skateboard down a snowy street. The card has been criticized for its stark and uncharacteristic design, which some have said is a nod to Cruz's political style.

Cruz has been known for his controversial remarks and policies, and his Christmas card has been seen as a reflection of his approach to politics.
