Beatitude is a state of grace, a gift from God, which is bestowed on the believer by God.

The grand old man of Congress, loyal to core

Nehru, the architect of India's post-independence foreign policy, had always been a champion of the cause of the oppressed and the underprivileged of the world. He was a great humanist, a philosopher and a statesman who had a deep understanding of the complexities of international relations. He was a man of vision, who believed in the power of ideas and principles. He was a man of action, who was always ready to take the lead in the fight for justice and equality.

Nehru's policies were based on the principles of non-alignment, non-interference and non-aggression. He was a proponent of peaceful coexistence and mutual respect among nations. He believed in the power of dialogue and negotiation to resolve conflicts and promote the cause of peace.

Nehru's foreign policy was characterized by its commitment to the ideals of democracy, human rights and international cooperation. He was a strong advocate of the United Nations and its role in maintaining international peace and security.

Nehru's influence was felt not only in India but also in the larger international community. His vision of a world based on cooperation and understanding continues to inspire generations of leaders and thinkers.

The Nehru-Gandhi family legacy continues to shape Indian politics and society. The values and principles that Nehru stood for are as relevant today as they were in his time. The memory of Nehru's service to the country and the world will live on through the generations.

THE PROBLEM of rethinking China aggression in the Ladakh region carries over from 2020, strengthening India’s national security conditions into an important priority for India’s security strategy for 2021. If the information security of Indian citizens is to remain a preeminent consideration on the international agenda, until last year 2021, India was one of the few nations that were able to maintain the status quo in the border areas. In the wake of last year’s border standoff in the Doklam region, India’s position is now seen as more vulnerable as China continues to assert its sovereignty over the region.

There are two main factors that have contributed to China’s aggressive behavior. One is the presence of Chinese military forces in the region, which is seen as a potential threat to Indian national security. The second factor is the lack of a clear understanding of China’s objectives and intentions.

To be sure, France and Britain have improved their diplomatic cooperation, which is also expected to improve India’s ties with the West. The fact that the two countries share a common interest in the region is likely to have a positive impact. The United States has also taken a more supportive stance in recent years, and this is likely to have a positive impact too.

India now sees Europe as a natural partner in constructing a durable balance of power in Indo-Pacific.

As the problem of China aggression in the Ladakh region carries over from 2020, strengthening India’s national security conditions into an important priority for India’s security strategy for 2021.
