BMC to start issuing tax bills for homes up to 500 sq ft

SANJANA BHADRAO
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 4

FOUR YEARS after the Slum Rehabilitation Authority (SRA) began issuing tax bills for homes up to 500 sq ft, it is all set to kick off the exercise for homes up to 300 sq ft. The tax bills have hitherto been issued only for homes with area of more than 300 sq ft.

According to the SRA, the tax in question is a self-assessment property tax for residential properties.

In April 2017, the SRA had written to all the state governments asking them to send property tax bills to slum dwellers. In June 2018, the Supreme Court had ordered the SRA to issue tax bills to all the slum beneficiaries. Earlier this month, the government had decided to issue tax bills for homes up to 300 sq ft as well.

The government had decided to issue tax bills for homes up to 300 sq ft to help slum dwellers get access to home loans. It had also decided to issue tax bills for homes up to 500 sq ft to help slum dwellers get access to home loans and health insurance.

According to a source, the BMC will start issuing tax bills to slum beneficiaries from today.

After Adaris, RIL seeks to placate farmers; ‘with you’

A list of farmers from Punjab are among those who have been in the forefront of protests against the new farm laws. (PTI)

KASHISH ARAYAN
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 4

EXTENDED TO farmers opposed to the new agriculture laws, Reliance Industries Limited (RIL) said Monday that the company would always support the government’s farm laws, and that it would also work with the farmers to look at the process and find new solutions.

The company said it would continue to support the farmers and provide them with all necessary assistance.

In a statement, the company said it had always been supportive of the government’s policies and that it would continue to work with them to find new solutions.

The statement comes a day after the government announced it would introduce a new law to allow farmers to sell their produce directly to consumers.

The new law, which is expected to be passed later this year, will give farmers more control over their produce and allow them to sell it directly to consumers, without having to go through中间包括中文和英文内容的中英文对照翻译。

After Adani, RIL seeks to placate farmers

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's government said on Wednesday it would not allow Adani Group to sell its Indian coal business to Reliance Industries but would not stop the company from acquiring other assets in India, according to people familiar with the matter.

The government has been asked to reconsider its decision and consider the deal as an open-source transaction, the sources said.

The government had earlier said it would not allow Adani to sell its coal business but would allow it to acquire other assets in India, according to the sources.

BMC to turnumbo Covid-19 centres into vaccination facilities

MUMBAI, JANUARY 4

In addition to hospitals, the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) has decided to use public Covid centres as vaccination facilities during the ongoing phase so as to increase the level of Covid vaccination. It will consist of a variety of essential workers who have undergone PCR testing in the previous phase one emergency step.

Under phase one emergency step, 2000 people in all BMC hospitals have been vaccinated so far.

The BMC has decided to use the remaining seven public Covid centres in Mumbai to vaccinate healthcare workers.

On January 3, after the BMC had completed handling the procedures involved in re-opening the Covid centres in order to vaccinate people, the BMC informed the authorities that it would not receive any complaints from the public during the initial phase of the vaccination.

The BMC, however, will continue to provide vaccines to the public at all the Covid centres.

It is planned that the remaining centres will begin issuing vaccine to the public on January 6. The BMC will continue to vaccinate people in these centres until the availability of vaccines.

Prevention of sexual harassment at workplace: PIL in HC seeks safeguards for private sector ICC members

The PIL stated, “Members of the ICC have the statutory duty of adjudication. The PIL has been filed to provide justice to the accused women who are working in a corporate firm and are subjected to sexual harassment. The society in itself and not only the ICC members should not be prevented from providing any safeguards which will enable them to act without fear of any political power and without being subjected to any political pressures from any official or with considerable influence in the company.”

“The conflict of interest where the ICC members are shareholders or have a significant financial interest in a company may lead to a situation where the ICC, rather than being a platform for adjudication of complaints, is a platform for arbitrary transfers, terminations, or removal of women from the work. The risk of this lies in the perception among the members that the ICC is a platform for private interests rather than the platform for the women,” the PIL stated.

The PIL also said the ICC is a part of the corporate governance system in the private sector.

Income Tax officials visit Vadra premises to record statement; say no search against Dosanjh

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 4

Income Tax officials on Monday visited the premises of Robert Vadra in New Delhi to record his statement. The premises were to be searched under the Income Tax Act, 1961, but the Income Tax Department said no search was conducted.

The premises of Robert Vadra were raided in New Delhi on December 10, and the Income Tax Department had sought to conduct a search operation on January 6 under the Income Tax Act. The premises of Robert Vadra and his cousin Anil Ambani were raided by the income tax department.

The department investigating the case was investigating a dispute over the tax treatment of certain transactions involving Robert Vadra and his company. The raid was conducted under the Income Tax Act, which empowers the income tax authorities to enter premises and search for evidence in connection with income tax assessments.

The Income Tax Department had sought to conduct the search operation at the premises of Robert Vadra and his cousin Anil Ambani, who is also a businessman and investor in several companies.

According to the income tax department, it had information that Robert Vadra and his company had entered into certain transactions that were not properly taxed, and the department was investigating these transactions.

The income tax department had sought to enter the premises of Robert Vadra and his cousin Anil Ambani to search for evidence related to these transactions. The department had conducted the search operation at the premises of Robert Vadra and his cousin Anil Ambani on December 10, and the department was planning to conduct a search operation on January 6.

However, the income tax department did not conduct the search operation on January 6 as it was not allowed to do so. The department had filed a lawsuit challenging the decision of the Income Tax Authority to conduct the search operation on January 6.

The income tax department had filed a lawsuit challenging the decision of the Income Tax Authority to conduct the search operation on January 6. The department had sought to challenge the decision of the Income Tax Authority on the grounds that it did not have sufficient evidence to conduct the search operation.

India has approved two Covid-19 vaccines for restricted use. How do these work, when will they be given, and to whom? Why have some scientists expressed concern, and what is the government’s explanation?

PRABHA RAGHAVAN

India’s COVID-19 vaccine rollouts are set to begin in a few days.

What next for vaccine rollout?
**

India has approved two Covid-19 vaccines for restricted use. How do these work, when will they be given, and to whom? Why have some scientists expressed concern, and what is the government’s explanation?

Simple Put Question & Answer

What next for vaccine rollout?
**

India has approved two Covid-19 vaccines for restricted use. How do these work, when will they be given, and to whom? Why have some scientists expressed concern, and what is the government’s explanation?

When does the government consider it safe to introduce a vaccine?
**

The government considers it safe to introduce a vaccine after rigorous trials and regulatory approval. The vaccines have undergone extensive clinical trials involving thousands of participants to ensure their safety and efficacy.

What do vaccines do?

Vaccines work by stimulating your immune system to recognize and fight off a specific pathogen. When you receive a vaccine, your immune system is exposed to a harmless version of the pathogen, such as a weakened or dead form of the virus. This exposure triggers your immune system to produce antibodies that help protect you against future infections by the same pathogen.

Are there any restrictions on who can receive the vaccines?
**

Yes, there may be certain restrictions such as age, medical history, or comorbidities. These restrictions are based on the vaccine’s clinical trial data and the manufacturer’s recommendations.

What are the potential side effects of the vaccines?
**

The potential side effects of the vaccines vary depending on the vaccine type. Generally, they may include mild to moderate symptoms such as fever, fatigue, pain at the injection site, and flu-like symptoms. Severe side effects are rare.

When will the mass vaccination program begin?
**

The mass vaccination program is expected to begin soon after the vaccines are approved for use. The government has set up a national vaccination strategy to ensure equitable distribution across the country.

Who is eligible to receive the vaccines?
**

Based on the vaccine clinical trial data and regulatory approval, certain groups may be prioritized for vaccination. These may include healthcare workers, frontline workers, elderly, and people with underlying health conditions based on risk assessments.

How will the government ensure the vaccine’s safety and efficacy?
**

The government will ensure the vaccine’s safety and efficacy through regular monitoring and surveillance, as well as ongoing clinical trials and research. Additionally, adverse events will be reported and reviewed to assess their impact on the vaccine’s safety profile.

Can people who have had the vaccine still get the disease?
**

Yes, it is possible for people who have received a vaccine to still get the disease. This is because the vaccine provides immunity rather than complete protection. However, the vaccine reduces the severity of the disease, hospitalizations, and deaths.

What about the government’s role in vaccine rollout?

The government plays a crucial role in vaccine rollout by ensuring the vaccines are distributed equitably, prioritizing vulnerable groups, and monitoring safety and efficacy data. The government also works with the World Health Organization and other international partners to support global vaccine access.
COMMUNAL TENSION has been stoked in the Malwa region of Madhya Pradesh in the last few days and riots have broken out between the migrant workers and local residents. The latest flare-up of communal violence left eleven people injured on Thursday night, days after a mob of around 400 youths rampaged through some markets and burned the homes of Muslim families in the region.

The latest round of violence, which began on Thursday night, saw Muslims being beaten and burnt in the districts of Sirsa and Rohtak in Haryana, following protests against the government's decision to scrap Article 370. The protests, which began on Wednesday, resulted in the deaths of two people and the destruction of several shops and vehicles.

The government has yet to officially comment on the situation, but officials have said that security personnel are on high alert and that steps are being taken to maintain peace and order. The government has also said that it is investigating the matter and that those responsible will be brought to justice.

However, the situation has deteriorated further in recent days, with violence breaking out in other parts of the state, including in the districts of Rewari and Faridabad.

As a result, the government has imposed a curfew in several districts and has deployed additional police personnel to maintain law and order. The government has also urged people to maintain peace and avoid anyprovocative acts.

The protests have been sparked by the government's decision to scrap Article 370, which granted special status to Jammu and Kashmir, and has been met with widespread opposition from the region's Muslim population.

Local residents have accused the government of trying to discriminate against them and have called for the restoration of Article 370. The government has said that the move is aimed at integrating the region with the rest of the country and has met with widespread opposition.

The situation has also caused concern among the international community, with several countries expressing their concern and condemning the violence.

India has a long history of communal violence, and the latest round of protests is the latest in a series of incidents that have raised concerns about the safety and security of the region.

The government has said that it is committed to ensuring peace and order in the region and has urged people to maintain calm and avoid any provocative acts.

The government has also said that it is committed to protecting the rights of all its citizens, regardless of their religion or ethnicity, and has urged people to maintain peace and order.

The situation remains tense, and the government has urged people to maintain calm and avoid any provocative acts.

Tanya Roberts, known for her role in the James Bond film "A View to a Kill," has reportedly been arrested by police in the US. She was taken into custody on Friday, November 26, 2021, after being found dead in a Los Angeles hotel room. Roberts' family said they were “shocked and saddened” by the news.

The actress, 70, was found dead at the luxury hotel, according to a police report. Police said they received a call from the hotel around 10am on Friday and found a woman unresponsive in a room. She was declared dead on the scene.

Her death is being investigated by the Los Angeles County Coroner and Sheriff. The cause of death has not been confirmed.

Roberts, who rose to fame in the 1980s as a Bond girl, was known for her roles in movies such as "License to Kill," "Lethal Weapon," and "A View to a Kill." She also starred in the 1986 film "Red Heat."

The actress was a member of the cast of the long-running TV show "That '70s Show," where she played Donna Pinciotti. She was also a regular on "Entourage," where she played Ari Gold's mother, Teri.'
