Govt seeks foot in to make IIMs more easily

OFFER TO AMEND LAWS TURNED DOWN
Farmers harden stance, Govt weighs options, House session not ruled out

No politics, only farm issues: A team monitors the stage, decides speakers

PAYAL BHARTI
NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 5

MORE THAN 500 people anti-cross-landing protests were held on the sidelines of Parliament. The protest was to oppose any amendment to the law that would allow the Government to initiate an inquiry or take steps under Section 38 of the IIM Act.

The Ministry of Education recently shared a proposed amendment to the IIM Act with the Ministry of Law and Justice. The amendment seeks to empower the Central Government to initiate an inquiry into the alleged contravention of the Act. The Government has sought a meeting to discuss the proposed amendment.

Almost three years after grant of autonomy to the 20 premier business schools under the IIM Act, the Ministry will issue an order to make the autonomy a reality.

The Central government found itself hemmed in on Saturday with farmer unions once again taking a firm stand on the condition of making the IIMs autonomous.

Representatives of farmer unions brought their own food for the meeting at Vigyan Bhawan, in New Delhi on Saturday.

The 30-year-old mother said, “I have got full dose of Covishield. I want to get my son vaccinated, but the hospital is refusing to vaccinate him because he is not fully vaccinated. I want him to get vaccinated as soon as possible.”

Sourab Ghosh, who was among the farmers, said, “We are not going to stop our movement until we get our demands.”

Pfizer applies for emergency use of its vaccine

The US Food and Drug Administration on Thursday gave emergency use authorization to Pfizer, Inc. and BioNTech SE’s COVID-19 vaccine.

The companies had requested emergency use authorization under the EUA based on the WHO’s recommendation, according to a statement by the drugmakers.

The EUA allows use of a drug in an emergency without the usual requirements for clinical trials and data analysis.

The US FDA’s authorization is the first step in the country’s effort to distribute the vaccine, which is expected to be available in limited quantities in December.

THE THREE FARM LAWS ARE NOT NECESSARILY HARMFUL FOR NEITHER FARMERS NOR CONSUMERS

In a significant development, a central government notification stated that the recent farm laws are not harmful for neither farmers nor consumers. The notification was issued by the Ministry of Agriculture and Farmers Welfare.

The notification was issued on the recommendation of a high-level committee appointed by the government. The committee was tasked with examining the impact of the farm laws on farmers and consumers.

The notification stated that the farm laws aim to increase competition in the market, reduce middlemen, and provide farmers with better prices. It also pointed out that the laws are expected to lead to increased productivity and higher incomes for farmers.

The notification further stated that the laws will allow farmers to sell their produce directly to consumers, reducing the role of中间men. This, in turn, is expected to lead to lower prices for consumers.

The notification also highlighted the importance of ensuring that the benefits of the laws are realized. It emphasized the need for effective implementation and enforcement of the laws to ensure that farmers and consumers reap the intended benefits.

The notification urged the states and union territories to take proactive steps to ensure the successful implementation of the laws. It also called for a concerted effort from all stakeholders, including farmers, traders, and consumers, to make the most of the opportunities presented by the new laws.

The notification concluded by stating that the government is committed to ensuring that the farm laws succeed in their objectives, and that it will continue to monitor their impact and make necessary adjustments as required.

Jharkhand opts in, all states now onboard Centre's borrowing plan

Sudip Maity

NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 5

State governments have now accepted the Centre's borrowing plan, with two exceptions. The 14th Finance Commission (FC) had recommended that states borrow up to 3% of the gross state domestic product (GSDP) in the current fiscal year, and this borrowing was to be factored into the Centre's consolidated revenue deficit. However, the Centre has now clarified that states can borrow up to 4% of GSDP, and the borrowing amount will be factored into the Centre's fiscal deficit. This is a significant change from the FC's recommendation, as it will allow states to borrow more funds to finance their deficits. The Centre's borrowing plan is expected to be finalized by the end of this month, and states are expected to submit their borrowing plans to the Centre by the end of January. The Centre has also clarified that states can borrow up to 3% of GSDP in the next fiscal year as well, as long as they submit their borrowing plans in time. MODI'S dangerous isolation

Several weeks ago, a journalist reported that a new video of a well-known politician had surfaced. The video purportedly showed the politician making overtly inflammatory statements and engaging in hate speech. The politician in question is a high-ranking member of the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), and the video has caused a stir in the political landscape of India. The incident has sparked debates about free speech, the role of the media, and the accountability of political leaders. The politician has denied the allegations, stating that the video has been doctored and that his character is being maliciously smeared. However, the video has gained widespread attention, and it has raised questions about the politician's stance on sensitive issues such as religion, politics, and national security. The incident has also highlighted the need for robust media regulation and the protection of free speech. The political parties and the media have been quick to react, with the opposition parties calling for an immediate investigation and backing action against the politician in question. The ruling party, however, has been silent on the matter, and the authorities have been accused of not taking effective action. The incident has once again brought to light the complex relationship between the media, politics, and public opinion in India. The politician's supporters have rallied behind him, and the video has triggered a wave of protests and condemnations. The incident has also raised concerns about the impact of misinformation and the role of social media in shaping public opinion. The stakes are high, and the outcome of this incident could have far-reaching implications for the upcoming elections and the future of Indian politics. It remains to be seen how the authorities will respond to this situation, and whether they will take decisive action to uphold the principles of democracy and free speech.
Japan's journey to an asteroid ends with a journey to Australia's outback by Hayabusa2, a robotics space probe launched by Japan's space agency, in 2014 to explore an asteroid named Ryugu, a region 280 miles north of Adelaide, the nearest large city.

The mission was successfully completed in 2021, with samples collected and returned to Earth. The samples have now been transferred to Australia for analysis.

The samples are expected to provide valuable insights into the formation and evolution of the solar system and the origins of life on Earth.

Australian scientists will now work to understand the data and results from the mission. The samples will be stored in a secure facility in Western Australia, and will be studied by teams of experts at several institutions across the country.

The mission was highly successful, and it is hoped that it will pave the way for future missions to other destinations in the solar system.

TTWO YEARS after a multi-cam- paign furore that had Hareesh wittily recountered in a Malayalam magazine, his translation into English has finally been published. A furore, the consequences of which have still not subsided, has been both a turning point and a personal growth experience for Murugan, the writer at the centre of it all. It was a turning point because, as Murugan himself points out, the centre of焦点was a question of protest and expression that touched upon something deeper, a question of protest against the suppression of free speech. It was also a personal growth experience because the controversy forced Murugan to reflect on his work and its reception, and to consider the role of the writer in society.

The controversy revolved around Murugan’s novel Hareesh, which was published in 2014 and described as a “provocative reimagining of Rudyard Kipling’s The Jungle Book.” The book was published in 2015 in English as The Second Wife: Songs of Belonging and its translation was the subject of a major controversy in India. The controversy was sparked by the book’s depiction of the caste system and its role in Indian society, which was seen by some as offensive and contrary to Indian values.

Murugan’s novel was translated by Jayasree Beshoy and published in English by HarperCollins in 2019. The book is a reimagining of Rudyard Kipling’s The Jungle Book, and it is set in the south Indian state of Kerala, where the author was born.

The controversy surrounding the book led to a series of protests and attacks on the author and his family. In December 2014, while at college, Murugan received a series of abusive phone calls and online threats. The book’s release was met with a backlash from certain quarters, and the controversy continued for several years.

Despite the controversy, Murugan’s novel has been praised for its boldness and its ability to challenge readers’ preconceived notions about the caste system. The book has been translated into several languages and has been the subject of several film adaptations.

In the end, the controversy surrounding Murugan’s novel was a turning point for the author, who has continued to write and publish his work, even in the face of adversity.
Meet US-based Indian singer Priya Darshini, whose debut album, about identity politics and immigration crisis, has been nominated at the 2021 Grammy Awards.

Priya Darshini, 29, has been nominated at the 2021 Grammy Awards for her debut album. From creating music in the US, however, she says the idea was to keep the focus on herself, her identity and her roots.

“Like the anti-immigration rhetoric of the outgoing American politics, she was snubbed almost everywhere, and the birthed her debut album, which was recorded live in 12 days, and its music is stripped of any commercialism. The album, in English and Marathi, features her renditions of classical tunes, which she says are an ode to the beauty and diversity of Indian culture.

“Once I set foot in the West, I was met with a warm welcome, but I was also met with skepticism and resistance,” says Priya. “It’s a challenge to prove myself, but I’m willing to take that challenge.”

Priya says her music is a reflection of her own journey, and her ability to embrace different cultures. “I’m not trying to force anyone to accept me, but I’m trying to show them that my music is a reflection of who I am.”

When the trees of Central Vista demand to be declared sacred and part of a sacred grove

Dealing with the Periphery

by Sunita Seth

In 2023, a group of urban planners and community leaders in Mumbai decided to take a stand against the proposed Central Vista development. They formed the “Trees of Central Vista” movement, which aims to protect the trees that line the proposed boulevard.

“Central Vista is a symbol of the city’s colonial past,” says Sunita. “The trees that line it are a reminder of the city’s history, and they should be protected.”

The movement has faced opposition from the government, which has threatened to take action against anyone who tries to stop the construction of the Central Vista. However, the movement has persisted, and it has now gained the support of many people in Mumbai.

“People are starting to realize the importance of the trees that line Central Vista,” says Sunita. “They are a symbol of the city’s history, and they should be protected.”

The movement continues to fight for the protection of the trees, and it has already won a major victory. In 2024, the government agreed to protect the trees, and they will be declared a sacred grove.

Stephen Alter on taking forward Mowgli’s story in Piral Dreams and his enduring bond with the Himalayas

Devashish Dua

Most people are acquainted with the characters of The Jungle Book, whether through Kipling’s original story or its various film adaptations. Stephen Alter’s latest novel, Mowgli: His Father, takes readers on a journey into the heart of the forest, exploring the themes of identity, belonging, and the nature of evil.

In his new book, Alter delves into the life of a young boy named Mowgli, who is raised by the animal community in the jungle. Mowgli’s story is one of survival, identity, and the struggle against evil.

As Mowgli grows up, he learns to navigate the complexities of the jungle and the challenges he faces. The book explores the themes of power, corruption, and the impact of evil on human societies.

In the end, Mowgli’s story becomes a powerful reminder of the resilience of the human spirit and the importance of standing up against evil. Mowgli: His Father is a gripping and thought-provoking novel that will leave readers with a deep sense of empathy and understanding.

SA-England ODIs series to go ahead

The One-Day International series between South Africa and England will start on Tuesday, after the Proteas' squad returned to training on Sunday, after isolating over the weekend to check the spread of Covid-19 on tour. The series, which starts at the Newlands on Tuesday, is South Africa's first tour of England in a decade, as well as their first since the Proteas last played away from home on 20 November 2019. The tour will be played in empty stadiums, with teams practicing in their own bubble and no fans in attendance.
