The TAMING OF THE FLU

In Britain, Shakespeare’s plays.

A plague on one’s house — that’s how this year began. One that has been spent, somewhat like Lady Macbeth’s, absently whistling, wondering whether all the vanities of fools would be enough to drown this blackness. The fools who did not have to make a living, deciding what to do at the end of the day, when to take a rest and how to feel, are the real heroes of this play. The fools who are not fools, but fools who are fools, and fools who are not fools, but fools who are fools.

Dear Editor,

I disagree.

A column in which we review and analyze news coverage of 'The Indian Express'.

The editorial inappropriately takes my speech given in a different context and transposes it to the current issue, why they differ with the editorial. This is nothing short of exemplary journalistic practice.

The core of my speech is that we all should not employ in the illegal conduct.

US sets grim new record of over 3,000 coronavirus deaths in a day

Panel of experts meet to decide on Pfizer for shots

Canada latest to approve Pfizer's Covid-19 vaccine

Canada approved a single production run and eagerly sought to order more. The vaccine was approved for emergency use in Canada, adding to the list of countries and territories that can now begin vaccinating their populations.

The US Food and Drug Administration had already approved the vaccine for emergency use in December. In Canada, the vaccine was approved by Health Canada on Thursday.

The vaccine has been approved by more than 50 countries and territories, including the US, Europe, Canada, and Australia.

The latest approval comes as countries around the world are racing to vaccinate their populations against the coronavirus. The vaccine has been shown to be effective in preventing COVID-19 in clinical trials and has been widely praised for its safety and efficacy.

In Canada, the vaccine will be distributed to health care workers, long-term care residents, and other priority groups. The government has said that it plans to vaccinate up to 7.5 million people by the end of March.

The approval of the vaccine in Canada is a significant milestone in the country's efforts to combat the pandemic. It will help to bolster confidence in the vaccine and encourage more people to get vaccinated.

However, the vaccine is not a silver bullet. Even with the availability of the vaccine, it will be important to continue to follow public health guidelines and take other measures to prevent the spread of the virus.

The government has said that it will continue to monitor the vaccine's performance and will work with health care providers and other stakeholders to ensure that it is used safely and effectively.

The approval of the vaccine in Canada is a significant step in the country's efforts to combat the pandemic. It is expected to help reduce the number of cases, hospitalizations, and deaths from COVID-19.

Cameron is yet to play a Test, but his domestic exploits have got Ausie punjeds excited about the arrival of a rare-seam-bowling all-rounder of quality.

VISIONAL MEANDRINGS

In an attempt to stop the hyper and honey around Cameron Green’s maiden selection the Western Australia’s bowling coach Matt Lamb follows the ball on the Test pitch, he was the first to arrive at the Adelaide Oval the day before the Test to get his eye in. Test match father would be repeating what he did when he arrived in Calcutta in 1957, he went straight to the iconic Eden Gardens to take a walk. The green fields of Western Australia, the green grass of the Oval, the great forth Miller. That would be saying

That before Cameron Green is even all-round he may probably get to bat on the stumps... And I’d say that if that is the future.
