Congress says alliance with Sena conditional, limited to Maharashtra

MUMBAI, DECEMBER 27

The Congress on Sunday made it clear that it would proceed with its alliance with the Sena in Maharashtra on condition, saying that the joint front would not be extended to Goa and Assam.

The party’s senior leader Prakash Insaid on ABC’s Good Morning America that the alliance would not be extended to the two states.

The BJP, which had earlier held a meeting with the Sena to discuss its proposal for a national coalition, has also made it clear that it would not extend the alliance to Goa and Assam.

The Congress has been seeking to strengthen its position in the state after being forced to form a government with the Sena in 2019.

In a letter to the Sena, the party leader said that it was willing to extend the alliance to Goa and Assam in the future, but that it would first need to see if the Sena was serious about its commitment.

Mumbai to redo old drains, widen existing ones

LAXMIPRIY Deka

BMCMumbai has decided to take an aggressive line of old drains and the city’s worsening network of stormwater drainage flooding remained by Mumbai rains. The city’s worst ever floods this monsoon are the latest in a series of consecutive years of disastrous monsoon floods, with the 2021 floods being particularly severe. The situation has been further exacerbated by ongoing ongoing development projects. The city has already faced severe flooding this season, with over 300 incidents of flooding reported in just the first half of the year. The problem is compounded by the city’s aging and inadequate drainage system, which is unable to cope with the increased volume of rainwater and stormwater. The city’s drainage network is also unable to handle the large amounts of water that are generated by the city’s rapid urbanization and development. The situation is further compounded by the lack of proper maintenance and monitoring of the drainage system, which is often neglected due to lack of funding and inadequate resources. The problem is exacerbated by the lack of proper planning and design of the drainage system, which is often done in a haphazard manner and without proper consideration for the city’s natural topography and hydrology. Nitin gives JD(U) charge to RCP Singh, says he wants to focus on governance

SANTOSH SINGH
PATNA, DECEMBER 27

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday held a meeting with the JD(U) president RCP Singh at his residence here and the senior leader was told to take over as the party president, sources said.

“Rajya Sabha leader Nitish Kumar was also present in the meeting,” an official of the JD(U) told PTI.

Sources said that after the meeting, the JD(U) president will be running for a major overhaul of the party structure and the focus will be on governance.

Several party leaders decried the move to give the top post to RCP Singh, who had been the Congress general secretary in charge of Bihar, and party sources said that both the JD(U) and the Congress had not been consulted on the matter.

In a statement, the JD(U) said that “the party has no objection to Nitish Kumar’s decision as he is the most suitable person for the post.”

The JD(U) has been in a state of disarray since the victory of the coalition government of Nitish Kumar in the state assembly elections in 2015.

Several party leaders have expressed concerns over the leadership change and are likely to form a separate party, sources said.

The move comes amidst the ongoing farmers’ protest in Delhi and the party is likely to focus on the issue in the coming days.

The JD(U) is a junior partner of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) in the ruling NDA in the state and the party is expected to play a key role in the upcoming Assembly elections in 2021.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday visited Manipur, a state in northeastern India, to meet with people and discuss the situation on the ground.

In Uttar Pradesh, the state government has decided to issue a fresh timetable for the use of number plates on vehicles. The new timetable will come into effect from March 1, 2021, and will apply to all vehicles registered in the state, including two-wheelers, three-wheelers, and four-wheelers.

The central government has also issued a new set of guidelines for the use of number plates on vehicles. These guidelines will come into effect from March 1, 2021, and will apply to all vehicles registered in the state, including two-wheelers, three-wheelers, and four-wheelers.

In Ujjain, a clash between police and protesters erupted on the eve of the Congress party’s ‘Sahibzada Diwas’ celebration. The clash was triggered by the police’s attempt to stop the protesters from entering a sensitive area.

The police had earlier warned the protesters not to enter the area, but the protesters ignored the warning and tried to enter. The police then used tear gas and water cannons to disperse the crowd.

A statement from the police said that the protesters were attempting to provoke the police and cause trouble in the area.

The Congress party had earlier stated that it would not allow any protests or demonstrations in the area and had asked the police to maintain law and order.

Punjab farmerunions say focus on boycott of telecom firm, blame ‘miscreants’

JAMMU: Farmerunions here on Friday said that the government was complicit in the power disruption to mobile towers in the state.

In a press conference here, the President of the Jammu and Kashmir Panchayat Union, Tanveer Ahmad, and other members of the joint committee of the farmerunions said that the government was also responsible for the power disruption to mobile towers in the state.

“Earlier, we had called the government, but now we know that the government is also responsible for the power disruption to mobile towers in the state,” Ahmad said.

A special committee of experts was appointed by the United Nations (UN) to investigate the power cut.

The experts’ report showed that the power cut was caused by a fault in one of the state’s transmission lines.

However, the government has not taken any action against the culprits, who have been日夜不停地 working to resettle the displaced people.

How to measure aerosols with a particle counter, after accounting for dust

The tool used in the study was a portable device that measures particles in a specific size range. The researchers collected samples from the air and then analyzed them to determine the concentration of aerosols. The study was conducted in a controlled environment to ensure accurate results.

The results of the study suggest that aerosol measurements can be accurately made using a portable device. This could have implications for understanding the spread of viruses such as SARS-CoV-2, which are transmitted through aerosols. Further research is needed to confirm these findings and to develop improved methods for measuring aerosols in real-world settings.

In fact, India’s economic growth in the first quarter has been more sluggish, with the recovery process facing several challenges. The second quarter is likely to be better, with the economy moving towards a recovery mode, supported by consumer spending and investment.

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has noted that the economy is now in a recovery mode, supported by consumer spending and investment. However, the revival has been uneven, with the services sector witnessing a slower recovery compared to the manufacturing sector. The services sector, which accounts for about 74% of the economy, has been hit harder by the pandemic, leading to lower demand and weak business sentiment.

Inflation has been another concern, with the headline consumer price index (CPI) inflation rate rising to 6.9% in November from 6.8% in October. The core inflation, which剔除了 volatile food and fuel prices, remained elevated at 6.4% in November, indicating that inflation pressures continue to be strong.

The government has been proactive in introducing measures to counter the economic impact of the pandemic. It has announced several fiscal and monetary policies, including stimulus packages and rate cuts, to support the economy. The RBI has also reduced the policy rate multiple times to near-zero levels, effectively lowering the interest rate for borrowers.

Despite these efforts, the economic recovery remains fragile, with the services sector witnessing a slower recovery compared to the manufacturing sector. The government has announced several fiscal and monetary policies, including stimulus packages and rate cuts, to support the economy. The RBI has also reduced the policy rate multiple times to near-zero levels, effectively lowering the interest rate for borrowers.

However, the road ahead is not easy, with challenges such as sustaining the growth momentum, addressing inflationary pressures, and ensuring a sustainable recovery. The government and central banks need to continue to monitor the situation closely and take necessary steps to ensure a smooth and sustained recovery.

The Last Straw

Systemic neglect ensures that prisons act as the marginalised

Dr. Kiran Sreedharan and Vidya Bhavani Jayan

The NCSC’s recent inquiry on the release of noted radical leader Stan Swamy following a medical emergency led to a fresh debate on the state of prisons in India. The inquiry, conducted by the National Commission for Scheduled Castes and Tribes (NCSC), highlighted several issues, including overcrowding, inadequate medical facilities, and poor living conditions in prisons.

Swamy, a noted activist, was serving a life sentence for his role in the Bhima Koregaon case, which was related to a bowling protest in 2018. The NCSC’s inquiry was prompted by Swamy’s medical emergency, which led to widespread concern about the state of prisons in India.

The inquiry report, released in November, highlighted several issues, including overcrowding, inadequate medical facilities, and poor living conditions in prisons. The report recommended several measures, including releasing prisoners who are over 75 years old and those who have served more than 30 years in prison, to reduce the overcrowding in prisons.

The report also recommended the establishment of a separate prison for elderly prisoners, with special facilities to cater to their needs. It also recommended the appointment of a medical officer to oversee the medical facilities in prisons.

The government has promised to take steps to address the issues highlighted in the report, including releasing some prisoners and setting up a separate prison for elderly prisoners.

However, the issue of overcrowding remains a significant challenge, with the number of prisoners in Indian prisons being well above the capacity of the prisons. The government has been working on a comprehensive prison reform agenda to address the issue, including the construction of new prisons and the expansion of existing facilities.

The success of the TDP in securing an election victory in J&K is a vindication of the wider pro-minority politics espoused by the Congress and its regional allies. It is a vindication of the fact that the elections in J&K are democratic and free of any electoral malpractice.

But the Congress cannot take this success for granted. It must continue to work hard to ensure that the vote for secularism and diversity is not squandered.

The TDP's victory is also a reminder that the Congress must always be vigilant against the possibility of electoral manipulation. It must ensure that every vote cast is counted and that every voice is heard.

The TDP's victory is a testament to the resilience of democratic institutions in J&K. It is a victory for the people of J&K who have voted for a future that is free and fair.

The TDP's victory is a victory for the Congress, which has played a key role in the development of J&K. It is a victory for the secular and democratic values that have guided the Congress for decades.

But the TDP's victory is also a warning. It is a warning that the Congress must remain vigilant and work hard to ensure that every vote is counted and that every voice is heard.

In Afghanistan's village of widows, the opium trade has taken a deadly toll.

From the Indian Express

Afghanistan’s village of widows

The area is so desolate that no one ever seen with two children," said Daniel Pearl.

The village is so remote and isolated that, according to a report in The Hindu, it is "the most remote of all villages in Afghanistan." The village is situated on the outskirts of Kabul, the capital city of Afghanistan, and is home to around 500 people.

The village has a population of around 500 people, including women, children, and elderly people. The village is known for its isolation and lack of access to basic amenities such as electricity, running water, and healthcare.

The village is relatively isolated, and its inhabitants are largely self-sufficient. They grow most of their own food and raise sheep and goats for their livelihood.

The village is surrounded by mountains, which makes it difficult to access by road. The village is connected to the outside world through a narrow dirt road that winds through the mountains.

Afghanistan's Opium Production

Afghanistan is the world's largest producer of opium and poppy, according to the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime. The country produced 3,245 metric tons of opium in 2018, which is more than 80% of the global production.

The opium trade in Afghanistan is closely linked to the warlordism and the Taliban's rule. The Taliban has long been known for its support of the opium trade as a source of revenue.

The opium trade is a major source of income for many Afghans, particularly in rural areas. The trade is controlled by local warlords and criminal gangs, who use it as a means of financing their operations.

The opium trade is also a major driver of corruption and violence in Afghanistan. Local officials often turn a blind eye to the trade, and criminals use it as a means of political power.

The government of Afghanistan has attempted to reduce the opium trade in recent years, but the efforts have been largely unsuccessful. The trade remains a major challenge for the country's security and development.

Zero coupon bonds: Innovative govt tool to fund PSBs keep deficit check

Using FIOO to create impact of 200%

Though these zero coupon bonds issued by the government will not offer income tax benefits to the market participants terming them as "not very encouraging" and "great missionary" by some market participants, the government has taken a step in the right direction due to proper due diligence and issuance at par.

- How do they differ from zero coupon bonds issued by private banks?
  - While the previous tranches of zero coupon bonds are currently available and were issued by different banks, these zero coupon bonds issued by the government are available at the face value.
  - These government-issued zero coupon bonds are not tradable until maturity. These bonds are available in denominations of 30, 60, 90, 120, and 150 days.

Zero coupon bonds are special type of bonds where the interest is received on a periodic basis and the bond is redeemed at par value. Hence, these bonds have no coupon rate or interest rate.

- Why is it important: As per the MoSPI report, in addition to the factors that regularly delay work in any project, the government has given zero-coupon bonds as a incentive for defaulter industrial houses.

- For how long, is it tradable: These bond certificates are not tradable until maturity. Only those banks, which have a valid ATM card of the bank, can purchase these bonds. But, it will not be tradable after the maturity date.

- Why are these certificates issued: These certificates can be issued at par. These certificates will be available for public sector banks only.

Reasons for success of zero coupon bonds

- Earnings have backed investor expectation: Even though the zero-coupon bonds issued by public sector banks have not been tradable, it has given an opportunity to institutional investors to invest in bonds which are tradable at the face value.

How do these bonds differ from zero coupon bonds issued by private banks?

- These government-issued zero coupon bonds are not tradable until maturity. These bonds are available at the face value.

What are the prospects for these bonds?

- These coupons bonds may be issued by private banks or on a project-specific basis. Any bank which has a valid account with the government of India can buy these bonds.

FIOO method

- What is its impact: It is estimated that the FIOO method will result in an increase in gross fixed capital formation.

Why is it important: This method is being used to reduce the cost of capital and increase the availability of funds for investment purposes.

Conclusion:

The FIOO method is a significant step forward in the direction of promoting investment and economic growth. It provides an opportunity for institutional investors to invest in bonds that are tradable at the face value, thereby providing liquidity to the bond market and encouraging investment. The government can use this method to attract more institutional investors and promote economic development.
