In joint statement, leaders of 10 Opposition parties – the AIP’s statement says – “all parties have been titled in the data and the data is available on the website of the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR).”

As far as the farmer unions are concerned, they have been trying to negotiate with the government for the last few months. However, the government has not been very accommodating to their demands. The farmers have been protesting at various gateways of the national capital, New Delhi, since September 28, demanding the withdrawal of the three agri laws. The government has said that the farmers are being misinformed and that the laws are necessary for the modernization of the farm sector.

The Centre has also made it clear that it will not withdraw the laws and has argued that the farmers are only trying to create a stir in the country to disrupt normalcy. The Centre has also claimed that the laws will benefit the farmers in the long run and will ensure better prices for their produce.

Meanwhile, the Rajya Sabha has passed a resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of the three agri laws and the restoration of the old laws. The resolution, moved by Congress leader Anand Sharma, was adopted with 128 votes in favour and 106 against. The Lok Sabha will discuss the resolution on Friday.

From the first day, the farmers have been demanding the repeal of the three agri laws. The Centre has offered various concessions, but the farmers have been unsatisfied. The Centre has also said that the farmers are being misled by political parties and are only trying to create a stir in the country for political gains.

It remains to be seen how this standoff will end. The Centre has said that it will not withdraw the laws, while the farmers have vowed to continue their protest until their demands are met. The situation is likely to remain tense in the coming days.

Jubilant Covid services to operate till March 31, private beds may be released

The JMCC has announced that private beds will continue to be released for Covid patients till March 31. This has been done to ensure that all Covid patients have access to necessary medical facilities. The government has also emphasized on the need for patients to follow all the guidelines and protocols specified by the authorities to ensure their safety and well-being.

The JMCC will continue to allocate private beds on a priority basis based on the severity of the condition and the availability of resources. The allocation will be done through a centralized hospital management system, and the patients will be provided with necessary treatment and care.

The government has also emphasized on the importance of maintaining social distancing and wearing masks to prevent the spread of the virus. The patients are advised to follow all the guidelines and protocols specified by the authorities to ensure their safety and well-being.

While the government has taken several measures to ensure the availability of medical facilities, it is important for the patients to follow all the guidelines and protocols specified by the authorities to ensure their safety and well-being.

With Melinda Gates, BILL GATES chairs the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, the world’s largest private charitable foundation. After their annual letter, on the challenges of the pandemic was released Wednesday, he spoke with ANANT GONDA.

Excerpts:

How has the pandemic changed things in the countries your organization has worked with?

Melinda: We view the pandemic as an opportunity to learn. We have been in so many countries, and seen so many different approaches to handling the pandemic. And so we’ve learned a lot from our own failures, but also learned a lot from the failures of others. Of course, we’ve all made mistakes in all the countries, but I think we’ve been able to learn from those mistakes and find ways to make changes.

What lessons does the pandemic hold for you?

Melinda: There are many lessons we can learn from the pandemic. One of the most important lessons is that we need to be prepared for the next pandemic. We have learned that we need to have stronger health systems in place, that we need to have better vaccines, and that we need to have better ways of delivering those vaccines. We also learned that we need to have better ways of communicating with the public, and that we need to have better ways of working with governments.

Bill: I think the pandemic has shown us that we need to be better prepared for the next pandemic. We also need to be better prepared for natural disasters, and we need to be better prepared for economic disasters. We need to have better ways of protecting our health care systems, and we need to have better ways of protecting our economies.

What do you think the pandemic has taught us about ourselves?

Melinda: I think the pandemic has taught us a lot about ourselves. We have learned that we are all connected, and that we all have a responsibility to take care of each other. We have also learned that we need to be more prepared for the next pandemic, and that we need to be better prepared for natural disasters.

Bill: I think the pandemic has taught us that we need to be better prepared for the next pandemic, and that we need to be better prepared for natural disasters. We need to have better ways of protecting our health care systems, and we need to have better ways of protecting our economies.

What do you think the pandemic has taught us about our relationship with nature?

Melinda: I think the pandemic has taught us that we need to be better prepared for the next pandemic, and that we need to be better prepared for natural disasters. We need to have better ways of protecting our health care systems, and we need to have better ways of protecting our economies.

Why are markets falling and what lies ahead

The benchmark Sensex at BSE has lost 2,918 points or 5.9 percent over the last five trading sessions, the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) of Jerome H. Powell said it will maintain an accommodative stance on monetary policy, and keep interest rates between 0 and 0.25 percent. The Fed continues to buy mortgage-backed securities and has committed to use all available tools. The FOMC said major advances in medical science have reduced but not eliminated the severity of the economic outlook. Why did the markets fall?

While the Fed is likely to continue with its current monetary policy, a key concern for investors is whether the markets are running out of steam. A key reason for this is that the US economy continues to recover and the central bank is likely to maintain the accommodative stance on monetary policy. The FOMC will meet on Wednesday and its decision will be crucial for the direction of the markets. The FOMC’s decision will be closely watched by investors as the US economy continues to recover. The FOMC will also be looking at the inflation data, which is expected to show a rise in prices. The FOMC will also be looking at the employment data, which is expected to show a rise in the number of jobs.

What did the Feds say?

The FOMC will meet on Wednesday and the Federal Reserve has already signaled that it will maintain an accommodative stance on monetary policy. Jerome H. Powell, chairman of the Federal Reserve, has said that the Fed will maintain an accommodative stance on monetary policy. The FOMC will meet on Wednesday and its decision will be crucial for the direction of the markets.

Three key questions to ask the FED

1. What is the Fed looking at when it makes its decision?
2. What are the key data points the Fed is looking at?
3. What are the key takeaways from the Fed’s decision?

Kisan Kalyan Mission for welfare of farmers

In order to further promote agricultural growth and livelihood, the Kisan Kalyan Mission was launched. The mission aims to provide a platform for farmers to access information, resources, and support services. It has a focus on sustainable agriculture and improving crop yields.

District Magistrate in each district have been appointed with holistic planning for the Kisan Kalyan Mission. The mission covers all aspects of agriculture, including irrigation, crop insurance, and market linkages.

Agricultural Department officials will be reaching out to farmers across the state to understand their needs and provide the necessary support. The mission has a strict deadline of 300 districts in 300 days to achieve its objectives.

The mission includes the following key initiatives:

1. Farmers Welfare Fund
2. Crop Insurance
3. Market Linkages
4. Extension Services
5. Crop Protection
6. Agriculture Infrastructure
7. Sustainable Agriculture

The success of the mission will be measured by the improvement in crop yields, reduced dependency on inputs, and increased farmers' income. The mission has a target of 300 districts in 300 days to achieve its objectives.

The initiative will transform the agricultural landscape of Uttar Pradesh, ensuring a better future for its farmers.

Industrial parks to be developed along the Expressways in Uttar Pradesh

The capital and the NITI Aayog have undertaken an initiative to develop industrial parks along the national highways and expressways in Uttar Pradesh. The initiative aims to create jobs, promote entrepreneurship, and boost economic growth in the state.

The industrial parks will be developed in close proximity to the expressways, ensuring easy access to markets and transportation networks. The parks will offer a range of facilities, including office spaces, industrial units, and research centers.

The initiative will create employment opportunities for the local population and stimulate the growth of small and medium-sized enterprises. This will also help in the development of the state's infrastructure and contribute to the overall economic growth.

The project is expected to be completed within the next five years, and it is expected to generate significant economic benefits for the state.

District Magistrate in each district have been appointed with holistic planning for the Industrial Park Development Mission. The mission covers all aspects of industrial park development, including planning, design, construction, and operation.

Staging a new act

The star cast in Tamil Nadu politics is large, but there are no superstars this time

Armeth Lal

KONNICHEWOTAGEALAYA, an actor famed for his role as the ‘perfect student’ in the 1990s Telugu film Anando Brahma, has a FUNCTIONALITY in his role in Tamil Nadu politics. His character, of course, is that of a ‘perfect student’ who is so serious about his studies that he doesn’t have time for the little things — like politics.

In real life, Armath Lal, 34, is the CEO of an IT firm in Chennai. He is also a political activist and leader of the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK), the main opposition party in Tamil Nadu. His role is to stage a new act in Tamil Nadu politics, to bring change and progress to the state, much like his character did for his students.

But unlike in the film, Lal’s role in politics is not without challenges. The political landscape in Tamil Nadu is complex and constantly changing, with several parties vying for power. Lal and his party must navigate through these challenges to achieve their goals.

One of the key challenges is to appeal to a wide range of voters across different demographics and regions. The DMK has a strong base in the urban areas and among the working-class, but it needs to reach out to rural areas and the lower-middle class as well.

Another challenge is to present a clear and consistent message on issues that matter to the people of Tamil Nadu, such as education, health, and infrastructure. The party needs to ensure that its policies are not only sound but also resonate with the public.

Despite these challenges, Lal remains optimistic about the potential for change. “We believe that by working hard and making the right decisions, we can bring about positive change in Tamil Nadu,” he said.

Lal and the DMK are currently working on a series of initiatives to address some of the pressing issues facing the state. These include improving education and health care, providing employment opportunities, and promoting economic growth.

As he prepares for the next election, Lal is eager to build on the momentum gained in recent years. “We are determined to make Tamil Nadu a shining example of good governance,” he said.

For now, Lal is focused on the immediate task of winning the upcoming election. He is confident that with the right strategy and hard work, the DMK can emerge victorious and bring about a new era of progress in Tamil Nadu.

But Lal knows that the road ahead is not easy. “Politics is a tough game,” he said. “But we are ready for the challenge, and we are determined to succeed.”

While the future of Tamil Nadu politics remains uncertain, one thing is clear: Armath Lal and the DMK are ready to stage a new act, to bring about change and progress in the state.

Electronics: IT Min looks to restart production under ITA

The Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY) is looking to restart manufacturing and export operations under the various schemes managed by its department. The minister had said in December 2020 that the ministry was working on a framework to restart production under the various schemes. Though MeitY is optimistic about the revival of the sector, many companies are still grappling with issues related to cash flow, supply chain disruptions, and restricted operations. The ministry has also been working on schemes to provide financial assistance to companies that are facing difficulties in restarting operations. However, the restart of production under the various schemes is not likely to happen overnight, as several factors need to be considered, including the availability of raw materials, labor, and other resources. The ministry is also working on schemes to provide incentives to companies that are planning to invest in new capacity and modernize their operations. England's strength: Conditioning

How the visiting team with a very busy schedule is dealing with pandemic-time challenges of bubble burnout

England's plans preparation started only in the lockdown phase with an emphasis on the mental well-being of players.

Why are Bairstow, Butting休息ing for a part of the Test series against India?

It is a common scenario in Test cricket, and one or two batsmen are rested around the world. The most recent example was the 2020-21 series between England and South Africa where the tourists took a break after two Tests. India made a similar decision in 2011.

What is the reasoning behind the decision?

India's two-seamers have a great impact on the pace of play and are difficult to tackle. The team has always been keen to ensure they are at their best for the series against England.

Taking care of mental health

The mental well-being of players is crucial in a pandemic environment. The players are under immense pressure to perform well, and it is essential to ensure they are mentally fit.
